

CITY COUNCIL CAN NOW ESTABLISH A ZONING SYSTEM

Defining Location of Business and Industrial Establishments

AUTHORITY IN A NEW LAW

Approved by Governor Pinchot: Operates Through City Planning and Other Commission to be Appointed to Protect Residential Sections

The City Council of Connellsville and all other third class cities in the State are now authorized to enact ordinances of zoning and a or a class in the municipalities to which the location of business establishments and industrial plants may be confined and generally to provide for the protection of residential sections against encroachments that will tend to destroy their value as all this.

This bill, which is the third class city zoning bill which has been approved by Governor Pinchot. The bill is similar to that defeated in the 1921 session of the legislature.

The bill is the work of the committee on the part of the state chapter of the National Association of Public Health Officers, after a two year study of the subject. The provisions of the bill are as follows:

That for the purpose of promoting the public health safety and order convenience prosperity and general welfare of the city of Seattle the city may by ordinance regulate the use of buildings, trades and industries the location, design and construction of buildings and the areas of yards courts and open spaces therein, and may make and enforce regulations to carry out the district thereof and may alter the same but no alteration of such regulations may be made without the affirmative vote of a majority of the council or appointed in place of the council or other local legislative body.

Section 2-11 shall be the duty of the city planning commission of a city where such bodies exist or members of the council or committee of the council or another commission or committee may be created by the council for purposes to recommend to the council the boundaries of districts and appropriate legislation and districts to be imposed therein. Such bill shall make a tentative report and public meeting thereon before submitting its final report at such a council meeting may require after

LAST MOMENTS OF SUCCESS

Some Worth-While Thoughts That May Pay the Busy Man to Ponder Over.

It isn't success if it costs you the companionship and chumminess and love of your children. Very often boys, wealthy men of momentary success discover too late that they have sacrificed the finest thing in life, the affection of their family. Let me relate an incident recently told me which contains priceless suggestions for many ultra-busy business men. A prominent public utility executive of Illinois told a friend that he was going to give his young son an unusual Christmas present. "What's going to be?" he asked. "I'm going," he said, "to write my boy a letter telling him that, as a Christmas present, I'm going to give him an hour of my time every day." He added that he had been doing a lot of thinking on the subject, and felt that he owed this to his son.

Also, he did two weeks later. "I work at least an average of twelve hours a day, but I never fail to find time to romp with my little fellows or to tell them stories—'Grand old ones'—after they are ready for bed. I wouldn't forgo this pleasure for the sake of any amount of money. Wealth is an excellent thing to possess if earned honestly and utilized sensibly. But 'wealth' won't at the expense of health or family affection last worth, but poverty, poverty of heart, poverty of soul."—Baltimore American.

Ireland's Famine of 1847.
In 1847, famine in Ireland shocked the sensibilities of the people of the United States, who devised means to relieve some portion of the distress, concerning which many painful accounts were printed in the papers at the time. The Detroit News recalls, American vessels were freighted by private subscriptions in the United States and were sent on errands of mercy to Ireland, where entire families were howling with the pangs of hunger, and dying upon the pavements of a crowded city, while speculators in breadstuffs hurriedly cast the "wretched" portions of their granaries into the night, that it might be carried out to sea.

It was said that 200,000 pounds sterling were due to the Provincial Bank of Ireland by one house engaged in the importation of corn, which was bought by the cargo at $13 per ton, merely to be hoarded for a rise in prices. No satisfactory report of the distribution of the articles sent from America was ever made.

LEONARD
ONE-PIECE—PORCELAIN LINED
REFRIGERATORS

We've just unloaded and placed on our floors a solid carload of the famous "Leonard Cleanable" Refrigerators—the kind that have a nation-wide reputation for their superior construction and their economic operation.

These "Leonard Cleanables" are all of the 1923 make—embody many new improvements that are not found in any other Refrigerators. And we are showing them in so many different styles and sizes that you are sure to find here exactly the Refrigerator you want.

Even though it is just a little early — it will be to your decided advantage to choose your Refrigerator now — now while our stocks are most complete. Then, too, by making your selection now — you'll be ready and prepared when the warm weather sets in.

Why the "Leonard Cleanable" is the Most Economical Refrigerator to buy for Your Home!

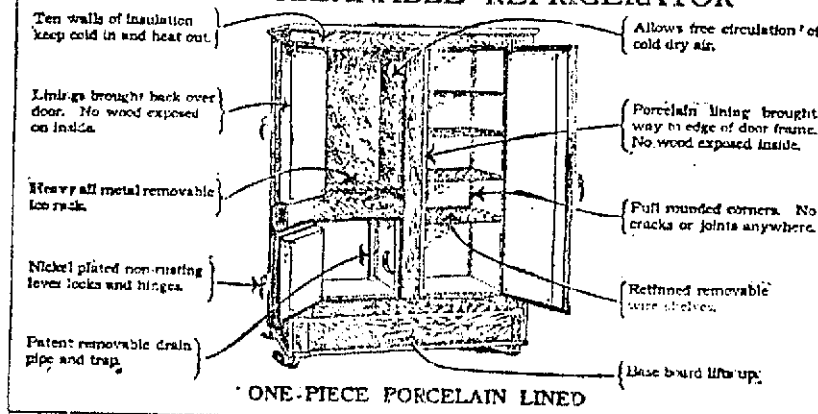

The "Leonard Cleanable" is lined with smooth hard one-piece porcelain with rounded corners—making it easy to clean.

Cold, dry air circulation is constantly maintained on highly scientific principles—reaching every point in the provision chamber.

The shelves are open woven wire mesh, heavily retinned and placed on aluminum pegs—permitting free circulation of dry, cold air.

The drain pipe and trap is located where it is easily accessible—but not in the way. It is made of non-rust material and lifts out easily for cleaning.

LEONARD CLEANABLE REFRIGERATOR

Ten heat-resisting walls of insulation keep the cold air in and the warm air out—insuring economy of ice consumption and efficiency of operation.

The porcelain lining comes way to the edge of the outside door frame—leaving no wood exposed anywhere on the inside.

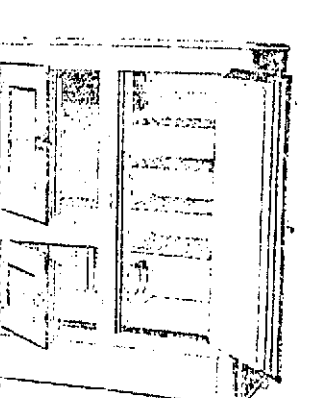

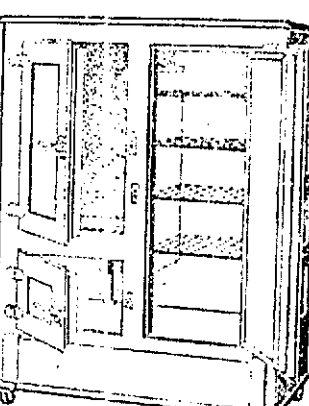

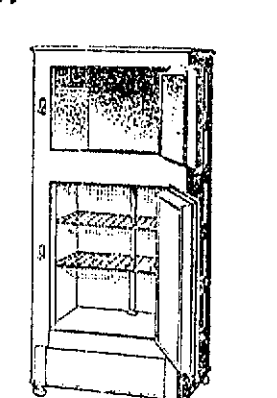

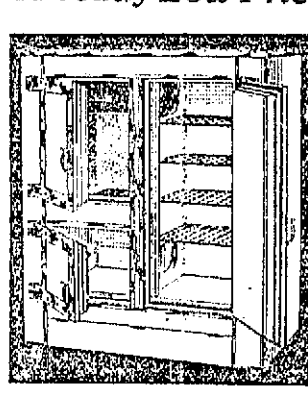

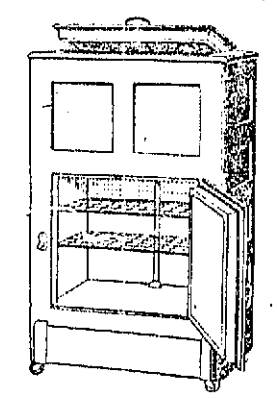

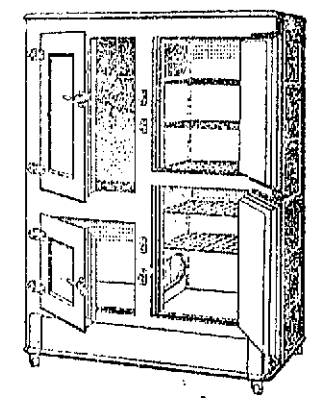

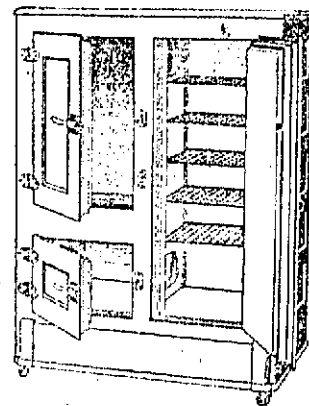

The ice rack is made of heavy galvanized iron. Will not rust or leak and sets well down in the ice chamber—out of the way.

The door sill and floor of the provision chamber are even—thus making cleaning a much easier task when the floors are sunk below the door sill.

Buying Direct from the Manufacturer—We Save You the Jobbers Commission!

We buy our "Leonard Cleanables" direct from the Grand Rapids Refrigerator Company—the makers—in carload lots. The saving we are able to effect in this way—we pass it right on to you. That's why we are able to offer them to you at the lowest possible prices—prices that are even lower than you are asked to pay for Refrigerators of the ordinary kinds elsewhere.

And During this Anniversary Sale You Can Buy Them

BURNING GARDEN EMBLEM.

Six special days having been set aside by Mayor Mitchell for the burning of garden rubbish, as part of the spring clean-up, ought to be sufficient for every household in the city to make an effective disposition of all material of this kind.

Some people seem to be under the impression that they can start fires at their back yards, and even in the adjacent lots, and that they can burn at any time to burn paper and other waste material. Every time they do so they violate a city ordinance which makes the burning of rubbish within the city limits, both on lots and in streets, or along a public highway, a crime.

To provide an opportunity to clear the gardens for planting Mayor Mitchell has set aside the last three days of this and the last three days of next week as periods when the burning of the ordinary waste will be suspended.

This means that every garden owner should get busy on one or more of the days designated and dispose of the dead weeds and other rubbish so that no accumulation of this kind will remain as breeding places for flies or disease.

If advantage is not taken at the permission thus given to get rid of winter debris by a very effective method and at no expense, persons who neglect to do so during the time set aside for this purpose should not be surprised that they are privileged to start backyard fires whenever they may suit their convenience to do so.

It is by no means pleasant to have the air filled with the smoke and disagreeable odors arising from burning weeds. By limiting the time in which this can be done the discomfort of neighbors will be lessened and a few days instead of dragging it along all through the spring cleaning time.

Persons who comply with the request of Mayor Mitchell and the Board of Health to do their garden burning on the days named will save just cause and be warranted in making complaint against their neighbors who disregard the regulations and do their burning at some other time when the provisions of the ordinance are not suspended.

For the comfort of both yourself and neighbors you should be entirely willing to cooperate in the effort to have the rubbish burning annoyance restricted to a few days.

WOULD MAKE DIVORCE
EASIER AND CHEAPER.

Of the proposed legislation of doubtful value or necessity, none is more dangerous than a series of bills introduced in the House, numbered 1242, 1243 and 1244 respectively, which provide that service in divorce actions may be dispensed with, and that upon respondents residing outside the commonwealth.

These bills were introduced at the suggestion of a Philadelphia lawyer who makes a specialty of divorce cases. Plainly, the object is to make divorce easier and cheaper by abolishing the requirement of the existing law that where the respondent has left the state two returns by the sheriff must be made at separate times of court and that notice given by advertisement in the newspapers.

If these bills become law, service on respondents of the marriage law would be made possible and would cause a rush to the courts by many thousand couples who would thus be enabled to secure divorces within two or three months as compared with the average time of nine months when personal service cannot be made on respondents residing outside the state.

Further, the law would make it easy to secure a divorce through fraud. Any married person holding his or her own lightly could agree to have a respected letter signed for by some friend in an adjoining state and procure a divorce. If caught, of course, he would be liable for fraud, but if he escaped, for fraud, if the absent spouse under such circumstances objected to a divorce so procured, but few such divorces are upset by the courts.

A New York judge who recently decided a celebrated divorce case in that state, and who has had many years experience on the bench, has declared that publicity is the greatest cure for the divorce evil. "Divorce," he said,
"should be made as difficult as possible so that the parties, to every divorce action would have plenty of time to think and change their minds."

While it is true that there are instances where desperate wives are justified in divorcing at the least possible expenses and in the shortest possible time, the number of such cases is small and the wrong resulting socially is insignificant compared to the injury which would be done to society if the marriage tie could be dissolved as easily as these bills will render it possible if enacted into law.

Saving A Matter
Of Determination

By S. W. STRAUSS, President American Society for Thrift.

Saving money is a matter of determination, not of income.

Many save money out of the most meagre incomes and in the face of great odds; many others, with handsome incomes, waste their golden years without putting aside a single penny from one year's end to the next.

It is one of the truths of life that those who cannot learn to save on a small income will not do so on a large one.

In an obscure corner of a prominent newspaper reference was made recently to a New York elevated guard who, out of his modest earnings, had during 25 years saved enough to give him a fixed income of $1,000 a year from the investment.

This in but one instance in thousands upon thousands of cases where substantial sums have been built up from slow, patient savings.

In no phase of life is the spirit of perseverance more harmful than in the matter of thrift.

Waiting for more ambitious times before beginning to save, has brought about the ultimate failure of many a well-meaning person.

It is with this intent that many say "when I begin making more money I will begin saving." But this is not the argument of those who really succeed in thrift. Success comes through making the right, no matter what the obstacles may be.

Do not pigeon hole your good intentions.

The saving of a penny today is of more value than the possibility of saving a dollar at some future time.

Most things in life are gained through determination. And this applies with special emphasis to the matter of saving money.

NEWS OF DAY AT MOUNT PLEASANT BRIEFLY RELATED

Robekahs of Scottdale Entertained by Local Lodge.

YOUNGWOOD TEAM LOSES

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, April 9.—On Friday evening Robekahs from Scottdale were present at the guests of the Julia Robekah Lodge. The installation to have been held was postponed. Refreshments were served.

Miss Rumbach Hostess.
Miss Maria Rumbach was hostess to the members of the Saturday afternoon Club at her main street home. Miss Anna Galley read a paper on "Romances of the American Revolution." Refreshments and a social hour followed a lengthy session.

Dinner for Daughters.
Mrs. Adam Wilkinson on Friday evening entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner at her North Silver street home in honor of her daughters, Miss Edith Wilkinson, a teacher in the Pittsburg schools, Mrs. Paul Myers of Rutledge and Mrs. George Wilkinson of Pittsburg.

Pretzel Win.
The Pretzel Club basketball team trounced the Youngwood Tornados in a fast game. Here, a local player, has joined hands with the Pretzels. Manager Stohl did not play with his boys as he was taking a rest, but he was there to encourage them. The lineup:

Pretzel A. C.—St. Youngwood—21.
Abrahamson P. — Dora
Hire P. — Gardner
Wakarath C. — Cunningham
Ridgely C. — Mink
Randolph C. — Tibbels
Substitutions—Shaw for Randolph, Wilkinson for Mink, Mink for Ridgely.

Other News.
Rev. J. S. Jewell, executive secretary of the Baptist Orphanage and Home, last evening presented to the Baptist congregation the work and need of the orphanage.

Mrs. A. Herd and family have returned to Pittsburg after a visit paid Mrs. Herd's mother, Mrs. Meta Lackman.

Meyersdale

MEYERSDALE, April 9.—The dance and card party given by the Rex Club on Thursday evening at the Casino was a very delightful affair. Sixty couples were present. McVay's orchestra of Johnstown furnished the music. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. J. E. Reich and Mrs. H. Williams were at Johnstown, Thursday, where they attended an inter-county conference of welfare work pertaining to baby clinics. Mrs. Reich is chairman of the Meyersdale clinic. Lunch was served at 1 o'clock at the Fort Shaw's Hotel after which a very pleasant meeting was held.

Mrs. P. C. West left Friday for a visit with relatives in Cumberland. Mrs. John Hance of Johnstown is spending a few days here with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Dean.

Mrs. Clarence Rose spent Friday visiting in Cumberland.

Mrs. E. H. Conrad is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. P. Ford in Cumberland.

Knitted Things Shown for the Sports Outfit

The year 1923 bids fair to be a record one for knitted sports clothes unless all the signs are wrong. European summer reports last year gave tremendous prestige to all kinds of machine and hand-knitted suits, sweaters, dresses, coats and capes. Practically nothing else was worn at the summer resorts along the northern coasts of France.

When the Biarritz season opened there was a continuance of the same things, except that the colors changed and instead of white, the sweaters, suit, cape or coat turned ruddy brown, apple green, golden yellow or took on a baroque effect by becoming multi-colored.

The greatest Paris dressmakers took up the idea and each one had his or her specialty. Chanel showed a sweater blouse with tailored suit. Worth showed the three-piece knitted suits, and many others, following in train, had their own particular models in dresses or suits that were knitted instead of made from woven materials.

The Russian workrooms, operated by titled Russian women for the benefit of Russian refugees, have produced many novelties in knitted garments. A type of sweater blouse that is knitted in Jacquard pattern is very popular in Paris at the moment. This idea is being strongly pushed by Chanel, Leprince and Junce, all of whom make a special feature of sports-wear garments for the smart women of Paris.

Get Cold Shoulder.
He has his heart to a sweet lass—
Though why at first he grew colder,
And then he asked her for his hand,
But she gave him the cold shoulder.

It's So to Others, Anyway.
"Does your husband enjoy sound sleep?"
"Really, I don't know. Sometimes from the sound he makes I think it must be agonizing to the poor fellow."

Amber-Colored Velvet.
Amber-colored velvet is used to make one of the most lovely evening frocks of the season. The sleeves are formed of a circle of amber, held close to the arm above the elbow and held in place by strands of amber from the shoulder.

Coque Feathers Used on This Chic Turban

This is a smart turban of milan straw, the top of which is covered with coque feathers.

Poke Shaped Hat to Be Popular This Season

The early season hats this year are invariably poke shapes, fitting close to the head and with scarcely any brim. They are more youthful than any shapes the shops have had for some time, and should be becoming to most any type of face if properly trimmed. The pokes may be widened with huge ribbon bows, heightened with feathers or broadened with side clusters of ribbon rosettes.

The most youthful effect for the poke is the side trim of shirred ribbon rosettes placed flatly at the sides of the bonnet. The rosettes may be made of plain ribbon, ribbon with silver or gold edges, metal ribbon or narrow black lace. The Parisian whim of the moment is to have a small cluster of bright flower buds in the center of the rosette. Round medallions of pearl beads are also popular as a center for gold or silver metal ribbon rosettes. Where pearls and metal ribbons are used more of an evening bonnet effect is obtained.

Evening affairs at present are demanding new hats for gowns and hats. Nothing could be prettier for a black lace dinner gown than the large black hat that is trimmed with exquisite black lace. There is nothing which softens the face as does lace. On large hats of horsehair, straw or tulle there is often just a sweep of wide lace about the crown which ends in long streamers at one side. Sometimes one streamer is long enough to be wound about the throat as a scarf. This is appropriate for restaurant wear, with the low-necked dinner gown.

On the small poke bonnets, black lace may be used in veil effect extending over the crown and brim and ending in a huge swirl bow at one side.

Waistline Is Higher Than Previous Season

As a general rule the waistline is slightly higher than it was last season, and skirts average about eight inches from the ground, according to a fashion article in the New York Tribune. It is predicted by many that the long skirt is on the wane. The sleeves in daytime frocks are long and tight or long and full, with the fullness gathered into a narrow band at the elbow, or more than that they are little more than cuffs that barely cover the shoulder. The flaring cuff is sponsored by several of the leading dressmakers. Evening gowns are sleeveless, all deep-cut armholes.

SEIBERLING CORDS

If you have trouble with sidewall chaffing you will want to see why this tire gave such high mileage with no sign of sidewall wear.

The answer is that there is no union on the sidewall of two kinds of rubber. On Seiberling-built tires the same tread rubber goes clear around, from head to head.

Come around and see this 21,328 mile tire.

SCORE OFF TO FILM SOUTH SEA SAVAGES

Adventurers Charter Whaler for Long Cruise to Islands That Are Rarely Visited.

Twenty men, average age forty, have sailed from San Francisco on the old whaler Narwhal for the south seas to film a childhood dream of films to be gained through adventure. But not by recovery of buried pirate gold or robbery of native pearl divers do they hope to accomplish their purpose.

There will be a modern way—the motion picture photograph of savage tribes, said to be cannibals. Against the savages' poisoned arrows they are prepared to match the white men's wits and firearms.

Their vessel, the Narwhal, is a three-masted bark. Its tonnage is 523, and length, including bowsprit, is 105 feet. To purchase the boat and supplies the 20 men incorporated themselves, each contributing $300.

Capt. Charles L. Arty, a member of the corporation, commands. During the war he was a lieutenant commander in the United States navy. The mate and three able seamen are the paid members of the expedition.

The cargo carried by the Narwhal includes two tons of dynamite, considerable gasoline, sacked coal, motion picture films and lumber. One of the crew remarked that in event of disaster they would go up, not down.

The Narwhal will touch first at Honolulu, and then go to Pago Pago, American Samoa, where the dynamite will be delivered to the United States navy. At Apia, British Samoa, the last of the cargo will be discharged.

Leaving Samoa, the Narwhal will set sail for islands seldom visited by white men—lands of romantic legend, of typhoons and cruel deaths. These islands are in the New Hebrides, New Hebrides, Solomon and New Guinea groups.

To obtain pictures of the islands and their people, the Narwhal's crew declared themselves willing to undergo any hardships, and to take any risks. Their vessel will anchor near the shore, and in a power launch a party will go ashore and proceed to the interior.

With tinikets they will attempt to conciliate the savages, but if hostility be shown they are prepared to defend themselves with revolvers and rifles.

From the many islands visited the Narwhal is expected to acquire a load of copra. Then, turning northward from the south seas, the island of Guam is to be the point of return voyage to San Francisco.

The president of the corporation is H. J. McWhorter, a mechanical engineer, who was in the navy during the war. Thomas J. Watson, secretary, is an insurance man of San Francisco who served in the medical corps in the war.

Others of the crew are Count Whipple, a geologist, formerly in the czar's army; Capt. H. C. Billings, formerly of the coast artillery, H. J. Hughes, lieutenant in the British flying corps in the war; Marvyn N. Fay, motion picture man; and J. E. M. L. who has explored the south seas and the Malay peninsula.

The Child's Gas.

A child would take a sample of it (the gas) in a bucket, and consider that in all its aspects; and then it would know that the real gas is a good many buckets of water, and further that by an odd trick of destiny this water is not fit to drink. Storms and ships and man-made castles and light-houses and all the other side-shows would fade into the background.

THIS VENERABLE MAN TESTIFIES

Tells how Drisco, the great root and herb remedy, increased his strength.

Relieved dizziness, constipation and strengthened his kidneys.

Uniontown people continue to call daily on the Drisco expert at his headquarters in the Central Drug Store and relate their experience with this new medicine which is causing such widespread interest since its recent introduction here.

F. K. BAUMGARDNER

"I am humbly constrained to add my truthful testimony concerning the valuable discovery, Drisco," declared Mr. F. K. Baumgardner, the 72 year old citizen of Uniontown, Pa., who is known and venerated by hosts of citizens of this city.

"One bottle of Drisco purged my sluggish liver and opened the channels which had annoyed me so much. My kidneys were strengthened and the constipation quickly relieved. My blood action is now regular and easy."

"I take pleasure in recommending Drisco for I have every confidence in it being an honest medicine of genuine merit."

Drisco has proven valuable to many elderly persons who find their kidneys not too freely, often causing them to get up during the night thereby breaking up their rest which is an necessary to them. Drisco also rouses a sluggish liver to action, quickly the nervous, induces sound sleep and creates a new appetite.

Drisco is purely a herbal compound containing no alcohol, acid, oil, bromine, mercury, or potash and may be taken into the most delicate stomach with every confidence of pleasing result.

Go today to the Connellsville Drug Company, ask for Mr. Smith, the well known Drisco expert, and he will courteously explain the merits of this great remedy. There is no charge. He will tell you if he honestly believes that Drisco will benefit you.

EGYPTIAN IDEAS IN NEW APPAREL

Gowns Are Agile With Embroideries of Vari-Colored Semi-Precious Stones.

All sorts of surprises meet us on the opening days of the spring season, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times.

All of the designers, their creative and artistic faculties stimulated by discoveries at Tut-Ankh-Amen's treasures, recently brought to light by the opening of the last of the Pharaoh's tombs, have given to the world an unprecedented wealth of sartorial splendor, pristine and barbaric in coloring. Evening gowns, particularly, give evidence of this Egyptian origin of ideas. They are agile with embroideries of vari-colored semi-precious stones. Even the silks and wools are colorful in a novel sense, and are ornamented with embroideries varying from those of primitive live and ancient designs to the most brilliant hues and proportions of motifs. Some of them even flaunt the outstretched wings of the royal vulture, that symbol of hope which the Pharaohs introduced into their decorative scheme of things funeral to such a marked degree.

There is a decided significance in the fact that these novel shades are the exact colors of the semi-precious stones which ornament many of the royal garments recently taken from the Egyptian tombs. Particularly smart are the blues of the turquoise, the pinks and reds of the carnelian and the blues and lapis lazuli. Above all, the instant use by all of the Parisian couturiers of shades of intense blue, fawn, scarlet, citron yellow, orange, and what are known as Egyptian red and Pompeian colorings all bespeak their ancient origin.

All of the amber and Titian shades so smart this season may likewise be traced to the same sources. At the same time we find the strongly which governs the rule in a simultaneous vogue for the all-white costume, the all-black creations, the black-and-white combinations and the natural shades such as beige, putty, peach, pivoire, pampas, sand, and the deeper autumnal colorings which merge into hazel, mandarin and pucier. Altogether, knowing the Egyptian landscape, could wonder that these tones take their place so naturally in a season of Egyptian modes?

Colors for Out-of-Door Wear.

So there is no dearth of color this season in costume designed for out-of-door wear. Formal evening gowns alone are, as a rule, keyed to less vibrant colors, though they more than compensate for this through their brilliancy of sheen. Fashioning of plain or fancy tinted lace, with a slight favoring of silver cloth, this type of gown is ablaze with all-over embroideries in semi-precious stones usually in two colors. Turquoise blue and crystal or red stones with a touch of black are particularly in evidence. The new metal cloths are soft of texture, lending themselves ideally to the prevailing modes that are draped. It is remarkable, however, to see how many of the newer models for evening are of simple, tubelike lines with beaded embroideries covering almost the entire surface.

Often the embroideries are set on separately at one side of the front or on the hip. It is only the draped under evening frocks and the charmingly youthful dance frocks of crepe or of chiffon which are more vividly colored.

Quite Egyptian, the designers claim, is the wide panel train hung from the shoulder line. It is so heavily beaded that it sweeps far out from the figure at the back even when, as is usually the case, the jeweled stride is being downward from the waistline in front, holds the train to the figure at the hips. Somehow this train suggests a return of the more formal type of wedding gown and the passing of the lacy bride. The trend of fashion toward elaborate drapings and fabrics and trimmings is re-introducing an age of sophisticated feminine apparel such as our present younger generation has never dreamed of. But, true to type, it is bound to reveal in this very sophistication.

The American woman is choosing a long coat for spring and it is a most elaborate affair wherever it is found. It is made in most instances and, strangely enough, of silk, but that silk is never allowed to be plain and unadorned. There is all-over embroidery used in conspicuous and inconspicuous ways. There is usually applied a collar of soft white or gray fur to make it effective and becoming at the neckline. There is always a tie belt or sash with a wide or a narrow bow at one end, which is the only means of holding the coat in place. The sleeves are, as a rule, fitted and narrow, but the embroidery extends all over their surface as well as the surface of the coat. The linings of these wraps are soft and sumptuous in gray or white or tan in one of its many interesting spring shades.

Capes of Silk.

Then there are the capes made of silk. They are as graceful and charming as they can be, with every width of fulness left in them so that their wearers can exert all of their individual ability in the direction of hugging those waving folds about their figures and giving to them the draped lines that most become their own personalities.

The question of this outer wrap has been something in which the American woman delights her fancy for expressing the present style. They are so smart that no one can go wrong in choosing one for her wardrobe; they are so useful, too, in so many ways that she will live to thank her instinct for leading her to select one for a place in her spring collection of clothes.

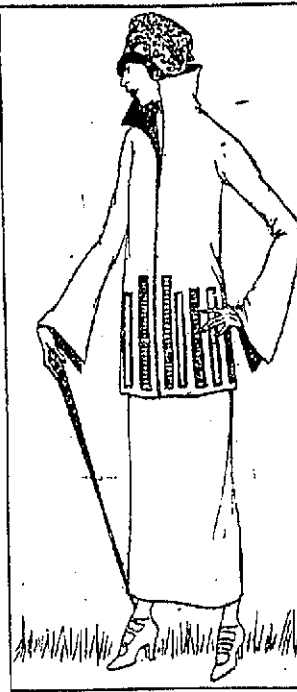

Here and there we see a three-quarter coat that holds a grave interest, for it is something so new in the possession of style. These coats are long and unbelted with strictly draping lines, and they, too, are embroidered either for trimming about the edges, or, in an all-over pattern following the treatment of the longer wraps that have already been described.

Coats for the three-piece suits are often found to be short. At times extremely short. At other times they grow longer, remain in straight lines and end somewhere about the knees. But these coats are cut so cleverly that they never for one moment suggest that they are anything but essential parts of the suits of which they are parts.

A great many of the coats for the three-piece suits are either trimmed with braid or ornamented with embroidery of one sort or another. It is seldom, indeed, that they are left plain, for it seems as though they must have some little sign of trimming to keep them in key with the season's styles. One of them is made of gray kasha cloth and is lined with a shade of almond green silk that makes a delightful color combination.

Sleeves Are Interesting.

The sleeves in this coat are characteristic of the sleeves in many of the coats of this general character. They are closely fitted at the armholes, and to the elbow they keep up that fitted line without any interruption. After that they slope away until by the time they reach the hands they have become wide and spreading. If they are going to be fitted anywhere, and the style notes say that they must be, then the fitting takes place at the shoulder line, for the lower sections of the sleeves are kept just as flaring as they have been for some seasons past.

There is one of these draped frocks, with its skirt caught into a large bunch at the front under an Egyptian howled ornament. All of the attention has been confined to the skirt and the bodice is left so plain that it is noticeable for that reason. This is one of the new ways to handle the material on a draped gown, being in accordance with the popularity of Egyptian lines. It is also designed to suit the American woman's figure most beautifully.

She Kept It Going.

Emphasizing the virtue of persistence, Mrs. Kathleen Morris says, as quoted in the Boston Advertiser: "When my husband was a magazine editor in 1910, a certain hatered and travel-worn story, a novelette, came to his office and was immediately rejected. Two years later, when he was on another magazine, the story reappeared. It was unchanged, the same little child story of optimism and hope. This second magazine paid a small sum for it, and it was serialized. From the Outlook

Love-Match Of Crown Princess Yolanda Is Consummated April 9

YOLANDA
ROME—It is still rare for a crown princess to marry a man of lowly rank. George Durr McIntosh to the contrary notwithstanding.

Therefore the surprise occasioned in Europe by the announcement that Crown Princess Yolanda of Italy will wed Count Carlo Calvi di Bergoglio April 9. The count is a plain cavalry officer, whose riding first inspired the princess' regard. She will have a Fascist wedding, and will make her wedding gown herself, as evidence of her belief in the economic principle of the Fascist.

For love of Count Calvi, the princess is said to have rejected the Prince of Wales, the Crown coming monarch-to-be.

CITY LEAGUE MANAGERS PLAN EARLIER START ON SCHEDULE NEXT SEASON

Believe Game Will Be More Successful Than During Past One.

TENNIS FANS TO MEET

By James M. Dineen.

An enthusiastic meeting of managers of the City League basketball teams was held Saturday night in the Unity Fraternity club rooms. The business for the year was closed and everyone expressed himself as completely satisfied with the past season in every way. Despite the poor start and general lack of enthusiasm during the early part of the schedule, the crowds towards the end were sufficiently large to offset all losses and there was a slight margin on the right side of the ledger.

The managers all felt an earlier start should be taken next year and efforts made to slow down the fans that the games in the league are on a par with exhibitions to be seen anywhere. Some of the cashes during the past year were far superior to the broad of floor game many fans paid to witness in other cities. Pleasure that the league was given sufficient support to carry it through the season was expressed. It was pointed out that the "death" of the Uniontown city league only gave the local organization something to work harder for and although the outlook was "blue" at times the association came through on top. In addition to giving fans a glimpse of the action of the "blue" region, the league also afforded many boys an opportunity to witness their heroes on a gymnasium floor. Sportsmanship is the keynote of the league and it was indicated that the meaning of the word would be made much more impressive next season.

The management expressed appreciation of the services of Referee Edward Wall, who officiated in all but two of the games during the year.

COURT ENTHUSIASTS WILL HOLD SESSION TOMORROW EVENING

The Connellsville Tennis Association will meet tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Unity Fraternity club rooms in North Pittsburgh street. The tennis boys have been anxious to get the initial meeting under way in order to have plans for the opening of the season moving and a big turnout is looked for. The club will likely arrange for a banquet to be held this month and a groundswell will probably be named to go to to work at once. By the latter part of the month it is likely the figures in white shirts and white shirts will be battling across the courts.

The tennis association means much to Connellsville. It is the only organization which has tennis courts in the city and without it many fans, including young boys and girls and young men and women, would be without an opportunity to play the game.

The association increased its membership last season and there are some new candidates for cards this season. In addition the boys and girls who are sons or daughters of members are privileged to use the courts during the hours not required by members.

Tennis has grown in Connellsville during the past four years until now it is one of the leading summer sports. Once only a few persons played the game but more have taken it up since an opportunity to play right at home has been afforded.

AS LUCKY AS POLYCRATES

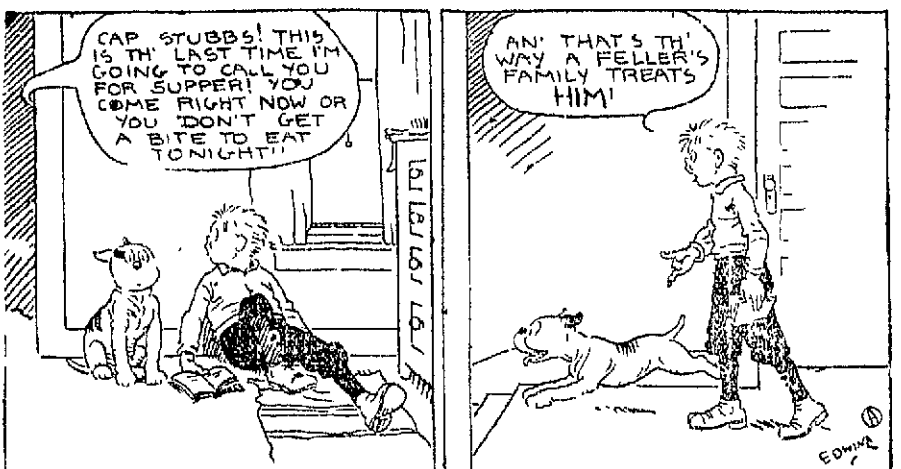

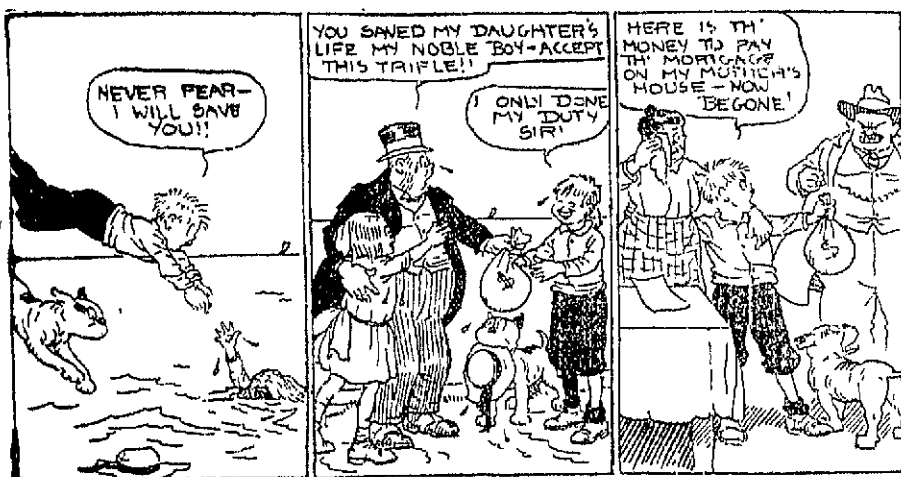

Pittsburgh High School Girl Recovered Lost Ring in a Manner Really Remarkable.

If lost and found rings could talk, what interesting stories we should have! Ever since Polycrates found his lost ring in the stomach of a fish back in the sixth century, B. C.—and doubtless even before there—lost articles, especially jewels, have "returned" in picture-que and interesting ways. Here, for example, is the story of a ring, lost only a few weeks ago, that is quite as extraordinary as that of the ring of Polycrates.

In the high school of Crafton, a suburb of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, the members of each class provide themselves with rings of special design as class mementos. A few weeks ago a girl in the senior class lost one of the boys take her ring, which shortly afterward he left on a table in his room. There his name saw it and supposing that it belonged to her nephew, put it on her finger and then went with a party of friends on an automobile trip. Somewhere in Virginia 200 miles or more from Pittsburgh the tourists stopped at a watering trough by the roadside. Some time after leaving it the aunt noticed that the ring was gone. Since she did not know when it had disappeared she made no effort to find it.

Later another party of tourists stopped at the watering trough, and a lady among them found the ring. Now here is the strange part of the story. The under also lived in Crafton, though she was unknown to the loser. On returning home the woman showed the ring to a girl who lived next door. The girl, who was a high school pupil, at once recognized it as a senior class ring. Inside the band the woman found the initials of the owner and returned the ring to her before the girl had even discovered that it was lost—Yours Truly's Companion.

POINTS FOR SQUAB RAISERS

Owners of Successful Plants Always Find Plenty to Do in Winter in Caring for Birds.

Managers of successful squab-raising plants always find plenty to do in winter taking care of their breeding pigeons, seeing they are properly mated, culled, housed and fed. It is large plump squabs are to be produced next spring the breeding pigeons must be kept in a good thrifty condition or the percentage of hatch will be low. The problem of giving a large strain of squabs depends on the kind of pigeons you select to keep in the breeding pens. By culling out the small, weak birds, with undesirable color of skin and other such points and disposing of the sex mixed ones the feed bill will be greatly reduced.

The birds should be looked after closely during the mating season. Odd or unpaired males must always be removed from the breeding pens. Pigeons are usually mated at the age of five or six months, and in some cases they are not mated until they are eight or nine months old.

With the increasing demand for plump squabs many of the squab raising plant owners have been ining to get larger pouter. The Maltese, the King, the Cornish, the Rock, and the Pouter have been extensively produced in some sections. Many of the old time squab raisers cling to the Homer. It is hardy, prolific, a hearty eater, and raises a high percentage of squabs. The pigeon breeder should be equipped once a month or often, and then sprayed with some of the preparations that are used to kill lice.

POULTRY NOTES

Disinfectants are cheaper than disease.

Fowls in confinement, to do well need a variety of food.

Crowding induces disease and lowers the vitality of fowls.

A breeding pen is usually made up of from six to fourteen females and a male.

A stowing chicken weighs about three pounds and a rooster four or more pounds.

Nests should not be too deep or the hens jump down on the eggs and break them.

When a chicken weighs between two and three pounds it is called a spring chicken.

A setting of eggs is usually counted at twelve although many poultrymen give fifteen eggs.

A broiler is a bird weighing two pounds or less and which is six to twelve weeks old.

The Bright Bees of Toupan

BY
James Branch Cabell

Copyright by United Feature Syndicate.

"And I might have had an earl, a well-thought-of baron, who would have had the decency to remember our anniversary and my birthday, and in any event would never have been in the house twenty-four hours a day. Instead here I am tied to a muddle-headed, fat, selfish, and utterly unloving creature who takes away his time from me by his constant presence, and who is so stupid that he cannot even remember to be kind to me. I could put up with the inconvenience of having you underfoot every moment. People need dreams to help them through the night, and nobody enjoys a really good dream more than I do when I have time for it, with the million and one things that are put upon me. But dreams ought to be wholesome, they ought to point us up, lifting moral, and certainly they ought not to be about incomprehensible things that nobody can half-way understand. They ought, in other words, to make you feel that the world is a pretty good sort of place after all."

"But, wife, I am sure that it is," says Miramon, mildly.

"Then the more shame to you! and the very least you can do is to keep such morbid notions to yourself, and not be upsetting other people's repose with them."

"I employ my natural gift, I express myself and none other. The roadhouse does not put forth wheat, nor fax either," returned the wizard, with a tired shrug. "In fine, what would you have?"

"Oh, a great deal it means to you what I prefer! But if I had my wish your silly dream-making would be taken away from you so that we might live sensibly."

Now as she spoke Gisela slapped viciously at the black cross. And a thing happened to behold which would have astonished the wizard and the children who had given over centuries in searching for the contrap which would release the bees of Toupan. For now without any exercise of magic the scurrying rag slipped from the stone one of these legends. Koshchel, who made all things as they are, had decreed, they report, that these bright perils could be freed only in the most obvious way, because he knew this would be the last method attempted by any learned person.

Now for an instant the walls of the tower were a quiver like blown bells. And the bees passed glittering to the window, and through the glass of the closed window, leaving a small round hole there as the creature went to join its seven fellows in the Pleiades.

Toupan, silent in the cold, unclosed its ancient unchangeable eyes. And they returned to his forehead estate in the moon, and all plants and trees everywhere were withered, and the sea also lost its greenness, and there were no more currents. And the High Gods were appalled to see their domain so near at hand, and they cried out to Koshchel who devised them.

Koshchel answered: "Have patience! When Toupan is released I fall with you, meanwhile I have made all things as they are."

And in that instant Miramon Lungor, as he stood blinking in his ivory tower, was aware of a touch upon his forehead, as if a damp sponge were passing over it, and he perceived that he had forgotten the secret of his wizardry. Something he could not recall, they say, of the magic of the Pearl and the east stones, of the Horse and the Bull, of the Water and moss of the lore of the Agapatus and the Ruidhu rune remained to him. He could still make shift, he knew, to control the bitter Duzguz, to build the fearful bridge of the White Ladies, or to control the forces of the Karrot. He kept his mastery of the Sheddew who devastate, of the Shehuren who terrify, and of the Mar'Veen who destroy. But such accomplishments, as he desperately knew, were the stuff of trade, of any competent venturer, enter anywhere, and that supreme secret which had made Miramon Lungor the master of all dreams was gone away from him completely.

He was very angry. "Accursed woman!" he cried out, "now indeed has your cunning come to its end. This is the doom of all artists that have to do with well-conducted women. Truly has it been said that the marriage bed is the grave of art. Well, I have put up with much from you, but this settles it, and I wish you were in the middle of next week."

With that he caught the scurrying rag from the hand of Gisela, and he slumped at one of the remaining beds, and brushed it from the black cross. And this bee departed as the other had done.

Toupan now moved his wings, curling, and by his moving the world in that part of the magic were destroyed and ran melting down the sky. Gaunary swept the fragments together and formed a sun immovably greater than that which he had lost. And the High Gods were frightened now with reason, for in this intolerable glare they showed as flimsy and in creditable inventions, and they knew that if ever the last remaining bee were freed from the cross, the dream of the Pleiades would be completed, and their day would be over, and the power would return to Toupan.

Yet Koshchel, lifting never a finger, said only: "Be sure, have patience! For I made all things as they are, and I know now it is not safe to say that I have made them in two ways."

But Miramon, in his ivory tower upon Valdez, knew only that his wish had been granted, for Gisela had gone just as a bubble broke.

"And a good bubble, too," says Miramon. He turned to Nindan, that smiling fiend. "Why, did you ever see the like of such outrageousness?"

"Oh, very often," replied this Nindan, who too was married. Then Nindan asked, "But what will you do next?"

Says Miramon, "I shall wish to have back the secret and the solace of my art."

But to Nindan this seemed less obvious. "You may do that by releasing the third bee. Yes, Miramon, you can get back your art, but you will be left defenseless against the doom which is appointed. No, friend, by my advice you will employ the contrap as you at first intended, and will secure for yourself eternal life by wishing that Plumberge may vanish from this world of men." And Nindan waved toward the sword with which the Norms had foreordained that Miramon Lungor must be killed by his own son.

The fallen wizard answered: "Of what worth is life if it breed no more dreams?" And Miramon said also, "I wonder, Nindan, just where is the middle of next week?"

Stoic Nindan spoke, secure in his infernal credulity. "It will fall upon a Wednesday, but nobody knows whence. Ophelus states that it is now in April, where all that enter are clothed like a bird with wings, and have only dust and clay to eat in the unchanging twilight."

"She would not like that. She had always a delicate digestion."

"Therese Adala Pollie suggests, not unpleasantly, that it waits beyond Eld and Gold. In the blue house of Nostred, where Sereda herds the unborn Wednesday, under a roof of plaited serpents."

"But now, now that would never suit a woman who had an almost morbid aversion to reptiles."

"But Sereda declares it is in Niballa, where Ziganca and Cabrak play at handball, and the carquois are at war."

"She would be none the happier there. She does not care for babies, and would no longer most unpleasingly, that it waits beyond Eld and Gold. In the blue house of Nostred, where Sereda herds the unborn Wednesday, under a roof of plaited serpents."

Fluid From Sheep Glands Restores Life to Persons Dead as Long as 30 Minutes

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, April 3.—A new method of resuscitation by the injection of fluid from the suprarenal glands directly into the heart, credited with reviving persons who have been pronounced dead, was explained in reports read by Dr. Donald W. Crile of Chicago, to a joint meeting of the Chicago Medical Society and the Chicago Society of Anesthetists.

Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, uncle of the speaker, was credited with pioneering work with his nephew in the resuscitation.

The physicians read reports of cases, explaining the revival of persons who, they said, had been dead as long as 30 minutes. In some cases the physicians said patients who had been pronounced dead were revived, died again, and were revived again in intervals and ultimately recovered completely.

As described by Dr. Crile, the method calls for the injection of three quantities of adrenalin, an extract from the suprarenal glands of sheep, into the heart by use of a hypodermic needle.

Sometimes, Dr. Crile said, resuscitation was assisted by manipulation of the heart in the hands and respiration aided by mechanical respiration of breathing apparatus.

"Life can be restored by this method provided the cause of death can be removed quickly," Dr. Crile said. "With prompt and fearless treatment, the patient may be made to live again."

"So far I have used the treatment only in cases of persons who were pronounced dead, not only by me, but by other surgeons. Hereafter I propose to employ it on persons who are dying."

Dr. Crile said the first use of adrenalin upon the human heart was in Belgium during the war when soldiers badly wounded by shells were restored by it and awaiting surgery. The greatest utility for the new method, Dr. Crile said, is in resuscitation of persons who die from effects of anesthetic while undergoing operations.

The suprarenal gland secretion, according to medical authorities, controls the emotions of courage and fear.

Dr. George W. Crile is a distinguished surgeon, author, lecturer and demonstrator and a recognized authority in the medical world. He holds several university degrees, having studied in Vienna, London and Paris. He is a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England and served as first lieutenant in Porto Rico in the Spanish-American War; major and professional director, Lakeside Base Hospital Unit, United States Army; in service with British forces in France; lieutenant colonel June, 1918, and colonel November, 1918. He won the Alvarado prize of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia in 1901 and many other awards. He is the author of several works on surgery.

That dancing will be one of its features is understood as what would an Irene Castle entertainment be without an exhibition of the latest ballroom dances executed by the "Incomparable" Irene, assisted by her dancing partner of several seasons—William Bourdon. So general has been the request for a repetition of several of her earlier individual successes that these are included in her offering. Invaluable in connection with her terpsichorean efforts is the support given to her by the Irene Castle Orchestra—an aggregation of musical artists under the direction of "Duke" Kallman who is considered the foremost of all dance music leaders. Among others in the bill are Miss Nellie Cardini, a prima donna whose fame is international and hand who will render selections from grand opera and also some less pretentious airs. A Fashion Revue will also be given and this will afford Mrs. Castle an opportunity to display in such style as was for her the title of "The Best Dressed Woman in America." Other contributors to what has been referred to as "an exceptionally entertaining program" are a trio of Skaters—Mullroy, McNeese and Ridge and a remarkable manipulation of cards and coins—"Kate" Loupzig.

At the Theatres

THE PARAMOUNT.

"CRASHIN' THRU"—With Harry Carey in the stellar role, is the feature picture today and tomorrow at this theatre. "Crashin' Thru" presents a story of heart and nerve, depicting a man who is captured in a "Crashin' Thru." It is a tale in which hundreds of tear-soaked horses stampede directly toward the camera, with a roaring prairie fire blazing at their heels and the invincible form of a beautiful girl in their path.

Wednesday and Thursday, "My Wild Irish Rose" will be shown.

THE SOLIDOR.

"THE LIGHT IN THE DARK"—On view today, Wednesday and Thursday at this theatre, is a First National picture with Hope Hampton in the leading role.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, "Count the Tentacles" will be shown.

THE ORPHEUM.

"ADAM'S JOB"—Showing at this theatre for four days, beginning today, is a Paramount picture presenting a story of heart and nerve. The featured players are Milton Sills, Theodore Kosloff, Edith Dwyer, Anna Q. Nilsson and Pauline Garon.

Friday and Saturday, Wallace Reid will be seen in "The Great Breaker".

STATE THEATRE, URGENTOWN.

The most interesting event of the social and theatrical season is the coming of Irene Castle and company to the State Theatre, URGENTOWN, Friday, matinee and night, in her latest offering, "Dances and Fashions of 1934." In preparing this entertainment for the playing public, Mrs. Castle decided to arrange a program which will be attractive in its every number, would differ from those

HOW TO ATTRACT BIRDS TO HOME

Feathered Friends Drawn by Proper Shelter and Food.

LOCATION OF BIRD HOUSES

Birds appear severely to the interests and affections of mankind. Not only do they charm by their graceful forms, lustrous colors, sprightly actions and usually pleasing notes, but they have an even more important claim upon our esteem because of their great economic value. Birds feed upon practically all insect pests. They are voracious, able to move freely from place to place, and exert a steady influence in keeping down the swelling tide of insect life.

The means of increasing the number of birds about the home are in a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture on how to attract them. "They comprise adequate protection and the provision of suitable nesting places, food and water. It is planned in series of publications to recommend practicable methods of attracting birds about homes in the various parts of the United States. Protection is the prime requisite for increasing the number of birds in any area, and the results of protection are in direct proportion to its thoroughness.

"Although a considerable number of our native birds build their nests on the ground, the majority place them in trees or shrubs, either in holes or on the limbs or in the crotches. Shrubs and trees for nesting sites, therefore, are essential for making a place attractive to birds, and a double purpose is served if the kinds planted are chosen from the list of fruit-bearing species given further on. Shrubs should be allowed to form thickets and should be pruned back severely when young, so as to produce numerous crooks.

Natural Bird Houses Going.
"Constant removal of old trees and modern tree-surgery have resulted in a great diminution in the number of tree cavities, the natural homes of most of our hole-nesting birds. Fortunately, most of these birds will utilize artificial nest cavities, or bird houses.

"As a rule, birds do not like to be crowded, and if a place is already filled with bird houses only a few of them will be accepted. Birds not only do not want bird neighbors too near, but are impatient of human meddling and therefore should be granted as much privacy as possible during the actual incubating and brooding.

"Nothing has a more potent attraction for birds during hot weather than drinking and bathing places. The birds' water supply should be a portable one, such as a few inches deep, the bottom sloping gradually upward toward the edge. Both bottom and edge should be rough, so as to afford a safe footing. A plant potter's saucer is an excellent device, or the pool may be made of concrete, or even metal, if the surface be roughened. The bird bath may be elevated or on the ground if in an open space where stinking excrement cannot approach too near. A water supply is appreciated in winter as well as in summer. If running water cannot be provided, that supplied should be warmed to delay freezing.

Supplying Plenty of Food.
"Food supply is a vital factor in bird life and the most important single offering that can be made in efforts to attract birds. It is important to note that an ample supply of food prior to and during the nesting season tends to increase the number of eggs laid and also the number of broods in a season. Bird food may be supplied in two ways—by planting trees, shrubs and herbs which produce seeds or fruits relished by birds, and by exposing food in artificial devices. The most suitable phase of the latter method is winter feeding.

"During the season when the natural food supply is at its lowest ebb, birds respond most readily to our hospitality. Winter feeding has become very popular, and the result has been to bring about better understanding between birds and humankind. The winter foods commonly used include such things as cracked corn, rice, linseed, sunflower seeds, millet, wheat, oats, barley, and various kinds of seeds. These should be scattered in small quantities about the yard, and the birds will come to the place where the food is scattered. It is important to note that an ample supply of food prior to and during the nesting season tends to increase the number of eggs laid and also the number of broods in a season. Bird food may be supplied in two ways—by planting trees, shrubs and herbs which produce seeds or fruits relished by birds, and by exposing food in artificial devices. The most suitable phase of the latter method is winter feeding.

Veils Mask Shy Eyes

Fashion Leaders Discuss Return of Face Covering.

Veils, which came back some time ago as a sort of softening decoration about the edge of women's hats and lately began to stream slightly in the breeze in the rear, as they did many years ago, now are creeping down a few inches below the front edge of hats so as to mask shy eyes.

Some of the Paris fashion leaders suggest that veils may be worn to cover the face entirely, as was the custom a generation back, when a well-dressed woman would as soon have thought of going in the street bareheaded as barefaced.

Newest of the New in Fashion is Knitted Sports Apparel

A MODE as captivating as it is unusual and sure to be beloved of every woman who looks for comfort as well as style in everything she wears! Knitted Sports Apparel has been all the rage in Southern resorts this season and with the coming of Spring it has extended its popularity to the North. Of course, every woman who prides herself on keeping abreast of the times will want to see these new effects. They are ready and waiting for you here in our Apparel Sections.

This sketch suggests the new effects that are to be found in knitted suits.

Knitted Capes $19.75-$29.75

Models that know the beauty of loose, graceful lines and the secret of successfully using color! They come in white, grey and buff and are knitted in close or open weaves. They are like nothing that Fashion has ever known before—and for that reason, alone, are worthy of a visit.

Knitted Frocks $19.75-$35

Knitted silks are their favorite materials and are used throughout a dress or simply to supply a skirt for a contrasting feature. Colors are bright—as sports colors must be. Each model is designed along simple, comfortable—and captivating lines. You will find it very easy to wear them with distinction.

Knitted Suits $22.50-$35

They are two piece effects. In some the skirt matches the jacket. Others have a contrasting skirt. And the new jacquette displaces the coat of other years. White is a favorite color but many other glowing shades are used. The majority of them appear in lustrous fibre silk and are tremendously becoming.
